CAMILLE FESCHE JOINS RIFKIN WEINER LIVINGSTON LLC

Hopkins and Georgetown Law Grad Adds to RWL Government Relations Division

Rifkin Weiner Livingston LLC (RWL) is pleased to announce the addition of Camille Fesche as an attorney in our Annapolis office. Camille, a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University and the Georgetown University Law Center, joins RWL with broad legal, legislative, and procurement experience. She will concentrate her practice in the firm's government relations division.

"Camille has a wealth of state and local government experience and is a great addition to our firm," said Joel D. Rozner, Chair of the RWL Government Relations Division. "Not only is she an attorney with exceptional advocacy skills, but her nuanced ability to manage complex client needs sets her apart. We're proud to welcome Camille to the firm."

Camille's diverse background includes: service under former New York mayor Michael Bloomberg; work with a world-class public relations firm; bankruptcy litigation; co-founding an international medical aid organization; and of course, hands-on government relations.

"I'm grateful to all of my former peers and colleagues who helped me along the way," said Camille. "My work in the public sector, public relations, international relations, a bankruptcy law practice, and state and local government relations culminates here. I look forward to new challenges assisting RWL's many clients."

Camille was born and raised in Baltimore County. She has a B.A. in International Relations from the Johns Hopkins University and a J.D. from the Georgetown University Law Center. She is a member of the Maryland Bar and resides in Montgomery County, Maryland with her husband and their dog, Monty.
